

MARCH

02

THE SECRET IS OUT; we're proud to introduce you to O2, our monthly booklet about whats happening at Sound and in LA right now and you're already a part of it. The exploding art scene, new music festivals, and culture boom make this an amazing time in an amazing place. And thanks to you lovely people, making our club what it is, SOUND has been nominated for Best Club of the Year by the new EMAF Awards (airing on Fox April 23rd).

This year has already been so big; we had to literally push the boundaries of own dancefloor to make more room to dance, just in time for March's onslaught of wish list house and techno.

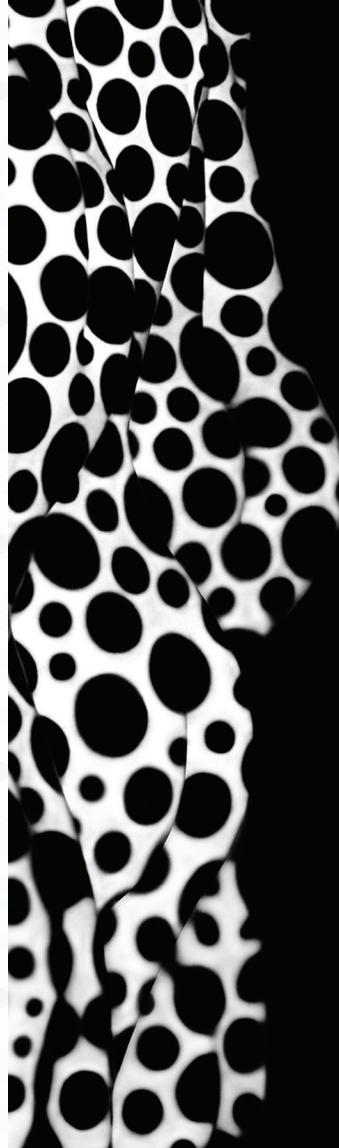

Of special note is our CRSSD FEST weekend with LOCO DICE, DOC MARTIN, DAMIAN LAZARUS, JEREMY OLANDER, and SKREAM; we consider it a pleasure and privilege to include them all in our family of artists. Looking forward to a great month, and this year's still just getting started.

See you on the dancefloor!

LA Has its Finger on the Pulse of Real Electronic Music industry perspective

by Deanna Rilling

Clubbing in 2016 is shaping up nicely as one that focuses less on gimmicks and status, more on getting back to the heart and soul of the SOUND. The earliest days of house and techno in Chicago and Detroit were about bringing people from a myriad of backgrounds together for one common groove. It's a groove and vibe bubbling back up to the surface and taking precedent over flashing lasers and theatrics.

With the EDM explosion over the past few years, hoards of new fans discovered a version of electronic music. But for those already in the know, one could decipher quantity over quality and cheesy, cookie-cutter productions prevailed. Any kid with a laptop and the right marketing could be the next superstar DJ, even if they'd never touched the decks before. Other, more seasoned DJs sold-out and morphed their sound to be more commercially viable and to nab those multi-million dollar contracts in Las Vegas. Banging out hits and a slew of quick builds and drops became the norm and it was all about chasing those "hands in the air" moments. The decades of true house and techno were relegated to side rooms and smaller stages where hopefully the newcomers might break away for a moment and discover something deeper.

Fortunately, it appears the EDM bubble has burst and fans are educating themselves on the deeper, more complex sounds. While the EDM capital of Las Vegas is still booking the exact same superstar DJs who play the same sets every weekend, Los Angeles has its finger on the pulse of legit electronic music that takes you on a true journey. Many from Sin City now make the pilgrimage to LA to hear something different, something honest. And if you're already in LA, the weekends afford multiple options and a variety of genres depending on your preferred persuasion.

At Sound Nightclub, the lineups aim to bring the best in house and techno. From legends like Richie Hawtin, Damian Lazarus, MK and Skream, to the masterful Loco Dice and newcomers Jonas Rathsman and Kidnap Kid, everything from progressive to tech takes hold. Return to the roots of the scene where the music takes center stage and the DJ spends more time behind the booth crafting a set than standing on top of it dousing the crowd in champagne and cake.

3/11 Friday

MK

Mark Kinchen offers up a taste of that legendary Detroit house music as he remixes the best in the biz such as Sia, Nile Rodgers, Lana Del Rey, Jamie Jones, Bakermat and more Expect a taste of those skills for a Friday night danceathon.

EDX, Nora En Pure, Croatia Squad

Italy's Maurizio Colella, better know as EDX, will work the dancefloor into a frenzy with his brand of progressive and electro house. Happy Birthday!

featured artist

KIDNAP KID

Following up his many successful releases on London label Black Butter Records, Kidnap Kid is ready to stretch his own wings. This year, he launches his new label Birds That Fly with a track of the same name, an emotionally ranged piece that seems almost muted while sparkling with bright reflective tones.

He explains: "After releasing on a number of great labels over the past few years, I'm excited to have one to call my own. Birds that Fly was born of the need for a home that felt in harmony with my musical aesthetic. I'm looking forward to releasing the music I love over the years to come."

We wanted to ask a few questions to learn more about him.

What's playing in your headphones right now?

Tame Impala.

What do you like on your pizza?

I had a spinach and egg pizza today. It was delicious.

If you could pick one television show that would put out episodes forever, what would it be?

Arrested Development.

We look forward to his performance at Sound on Saturday, March 26th!
