Amine Edge & Dance

Bringing the south of France vibes, the duo of Amine Edge & Dance draws inspiration from everything from big bass funk to late '80s hip-hop. Brush up on their sound with hits such as "Halfway Crooks" and "Going to Heaven with the Goodie-Goodies."

Monday 4.4
Ambivalent

If a techno DJ/producer has releases on the revered Minus, Ovum and Cocoon labels then they must be good. An American now living in the techno epicenter of Berlin, Kevin McHugh, aka Ambivalent, has also amassed a fanbase that includes Loco Dice, Adam Beyer, Josh Wink, Eats Everything and many more.

Friday 4.8
Technasia

Parisian DJ/producer Charles Siegling, aka Technasia has been flying solo since 2010. Siegling is a virtual one-man band, mastering keyboard, percussion and acoustic instrument duties as well as vocals and you can hear those masterful skills come together with a set at Sound.

DAYCLUB PALM SPRINGS

Get away for the day as the vibes and music you love from Sound takes a trip to Palm Springs. For the 2016 installment taking place during weekend one of Coachella on Sunday, April 17, the Hilton Palm Springs will play host to a daytime experience unparalleled to any other on this massive weekend.

Previously welcoming Jamie Jones and Loco Dice to the Sound Dayclub, this incarnation will be All Gone Pete Tong with the finest of electronic artists in tow. The party's namesake will obviously make an appearance on the decks and Tong is renowned for having his finger on the pulse of the very best in electronic music.

Bob Moses, made up of Canadians Tom Howie and Jimmy Vallance, bring true singer/songwriter prowess to their sets with moody deep house that propels the genre into the next incarnation of groove.

Dubfire brings a true sense of cool to the daytime party, despite the temperatures. Expect a minimalist set that compliments a day poolside nicely.

California's Lee K is a key creative player in the popular FNGRS CRSSD brand and she's shared the stage with deep and techno icons, bringing along driving basslines and dynamic percussion.

Yes, queen! Nicole Moudaber is a techno titan with legions of music lovers. Her sets will put you "In The MOOD" thanks to being one of the most respected forces on the scene right now. The Carol Cox favorite shares her passion for music and others both in the scene and her community. If you see her curly locks bouncing to the beat, just try not to dance along!

Last but not least, tropical house darling Thomas Jack--though recently, he is branching out into a more underground territory mixed with Burner vibes for a headier take on electronic music.

Early bird tickets are already sold out, but act fast and nab a general admission ticket now so you aren't left out!

Festival Season is All-Year for Electronic Music

by Deanna Rilling

If you haven't yet made it to one of the numerous festivals on the West Coast, what rock have you been living under? No longer is festival season confined to the summer months, but there's a plethora of musical adventure awaiting you year-round.

While the mainstream media wants to lump everything electronic into the category of "raves," we've come a long way from sketchy warehouses and map points. Long-gone is the fear of illegal gatherings and the threat the cops could show up and shut it down at any moment. The scene has evolved into an exciting and surreal world of high-end visuals, sound and artistic experiences.

Depending on your musical preferences, a fantastic festival experience can be found only a road trip away. Plus many festivals offer a diversity of stages and you can find one that may cater to your taste.

The biggest purveyor of electronic dance music festivals on the West Coast is Insomniac Events. The recent Beyond Wonderland at the San Manuel Amphitheater highlighted the resurgence of trance with a special Dreamstate stage on Friday (piggybacking off the successful Dreamstate festivals in San Bernardino and San Francisco this past winter). The following night, the beats were bumping with the Bassrush experience. For a groovier time, the CRSSD festival returned in March and there'll likely be another installment later this year.

Obviously one of the more musically-diverse festivals is that of Coachella, with everything from rock to electronic, pop to throwback. If you couldn't nab a ticket, you can still channel the vibes with Sound presenting Dayclub in Palm Springs during weekend one with artists such as Pete Tong, Nicole Moudaber, Dubfire, Bob Moses and more.

Speaking of Bob Moses, one festival they played at last year returns for 2016 and is just a few hours away from Los Angeles. Further Future is a transformative experience in the desert outside of Las Vegas at the Moapa River Reservation. April 29 to May 1 will be non-stop music, wellness workshops, gastronomy experiences (including ENTER.sake tasting with Richie Hawtin), and a Vision speaker series. Leftfield, Lee Burridge, Nicholar Jarr and Four Tet are only a sampling of the performers scheduled.

Of course the penultimate festival known worldwide is the Electric Daisy Carnival, also outside Sin City at the Las Vegas Motor Speedway. If you only make one music road trip this year, prepare to be astounded June 17 to 19 as the venue is transformed into an adult playground with music tucked away into every corner and all the lights and lasers available on the West Coast. They're known for keeping the lineup under wraps for a while, but tickets are known to sell out long before, so like every festival, if you snooze, you lose!

Friday 4.15
Nora En Pure

The South African-born Swiss resident Nora En Pure first garnered attention with her remix of Daniel Portman's "Khaweri." She next earned a spot on the Beatport charts with "You Make Me Float," followed by "Aurelia" and "Come with Me" for her takes on indie dance and deep house. Catch her latest with Redondo, "I Got To Do" on Spinnin' Deep.

Saturday 4.16
Marco Carola - Extended Set

As a global ambassador to techno, Italy's Marco Carola was a key factor in expanding the scene in his native country. Get up close as he works three decks and pack in for an impressive journey.

Justin Martin performs at Sound on Wednesday, April 20th, celebrating his new album release, "Hello Clouds" as well as his birthday.

If you're like us, Justin Martin's hit "Don't Go" automatically starts playing in your head every time the DJ/producer's name is mentioned. The infectious hook and dope bassline are house perfection, and his subsequent releases follow suit. Putting San Francisco on the house music map, Martin teamed up with Claude VonStroke to form the now infamous Dirtybird Records and gain a legion of followers.

Emerging on to the production scene in 2003, Martin's first foray into house via "The Sad Piano" caught the attention of Everything but the Girl's Ben Watt. Tapping Martin for his newly launched Buzzin' Fly, the track reached the ears of house music's elite such as Derrick Carter, Mark Farina and Pete Tong. Om Records also came calling for Martin's slamming remix of Iz & Diz's "Magnificent," plus mixing an entire volume of the label's compilation series.

Mentored by VonStroke, Martin appeared on their label's first four releases, followed by a myriad of EPs. As his recognition grew, Pete Tong tapped him for a legendary Essential Mix while Martin was also landing the cover of DJ Mag. Then Martin found a protégé in Ardalan and teamed up for another two EPs, including the staple track "Lezgo," a favorite of many DJs to work into their sets.

In case you were wondering, yes, Justin is related to Christian Martin and the brothers often team up as The Martin Brothers for a hip-hop influenced twist on singles such as "Stoopit," "Duckface" and "Dum." Remixing is also Martin's forte and he's put his spin on works from Radiohead ("Nude") and "Mushrooms" by Marshall Jefferson.

His debut artist album Ghetton & Gardens won fans over in 2011 and now just in time for you to hear him in LA, there's a new LP in tow. Sound will celebrate the official release of Hello Clouds on its drop date of April 20, so expect to hear plenty of the 13 new tracks for the party for all the little Dirty Birdies looking to fly their coop for the night.

Monday 4.18
Black Coffee

South Africa's Nkosingithi Maphumulo, better known as Black Coffee, has over 20 years of making people move with perfection, but it was in 2015 he was named "Breakthrough DJ Of The Year" at the DJ Awards in Ibiza following the release of his fifth album Pieces of Me, which went platinum in South Africa.

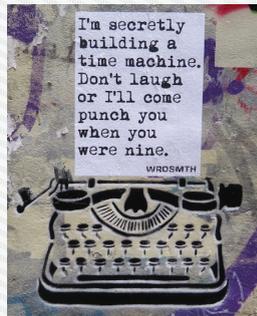

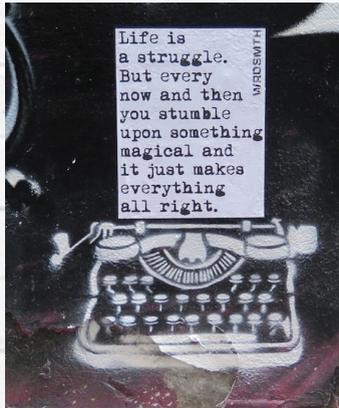

Tuesday 4.19
John Digweed

If for some horrible reason you can only go out once this month, you don't want to miss the master known as John Digweed in action. The Bedrock label boss brings depth to electronic music and is an idol of many other DJs in the game.
